KATMANDU, Nepal, May 9 (Reuters)—Two climbers have succeeded in scaling Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain, without the use of bottled oxygen at any stage, according to reports received here today from the expedition's base camp.

Reinhold Messner, 33, of Italy and Peter Habeler, 35, of Austria, reached the 8.848-meter summit at noon yesterday, the report said.

Both men are reported to be in reasonably good health although Mr. Messner, the expedition leader and a professional mountain guide, suffered a frostbitten thumb while taking photographs on the summit. He also suffered from temporary snow-hlindness last night.

News of the successful climb was prought by helicopter today. The seclicopter had been sent to bring tack one of the expedition's Sherpa Sorters. Ang Dawa, who was par-ially paralyzed by a severe attack of altitude sickness.

Some, including the governments of the Netherlands and Norway, explicitly supported the stand of the Italian government in having refused to accept the terrorists' conditions or to make compromises to secure the release of the Christian Democratic leader. Despite the sorrow and shock at the murder, there was a general feeling that the very base of democratic government had been at stake. Legislatures and international organizations, including the European Parliamcot and conferences of Common Market agricultural ministers and the World Health Organization, interrupted or even suspended their sessions to honor and to mourn Mr. Moro.

The only word from the East so far was a brief dispatch from Tass reporting Mr. Moro's death without comment, Previously, Tass had suggested that the kidnapping was a plot by both leftist and rightist extremists to provoke chaos in Italy, while Italian press reports that the terrorists had been armed by Communist countries were indignantly denied.

Quota is Met

But when the International Whaling Commission met in Tokyo in December, it voted to limit the bowhead harvest this year to 12 whales, and the village of Point Hope was given a quota of two. They have met that quota after only three weeks.

"That's not enough, because we feed the whole community," said Dorcas Rock, a 37-year-old Point Hope woman with five children, a part-time job as magistrate and coroner, and, in the springtime, a whaling crew to feed and care for. the four to five weeks in April and May that the whalers are camped on the ice.

The captains, "providers" in the Eskimo language, are still leaders in the village, as they have been for centuries, and they are indeed expected to provide for their people.

When the whale is killed by dans — "daning" — and shoul-

The entire effort may cost the captain's family $5,000 to $10,000 in groceries, fuel, guns, and other supplies, and the Eskimos are unhappy that all their effort may result in only two

The people of Point Hope, a village of frame houses that sits on a flat finger of land pointing into the Chukchi Sea, rely on the sea to sustain themselves, a need as old as their history. PARIS, May 9 (IHT)-Published reports that French United Nations troops plan to pull out of Tyre in south Lebanon prompted an outery in Paris newspapers today accompanied by speculation in Jerusalem that Israeli forces would stay in their remaining military positions in Lebanon.

Denials that the French con-ungent had been ordered to evacuate the southern port came from a UN spokesman in Beirut and from French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud, who said here that a planned French "redeployment" did not include the abandonment of the Tyre barracks which served as French headquarters until clashes took place.

However, newspapers citing French diplomatic sources said here that the UN had ordered the 1,300-man French force, the largest national contingent in the UN In-terim Mission, to new positions farther south to avoid clashes with Palestinian or Lebanese guerrillas infiltrating toward Israel,

Export Subsidy WASHINGTON, May 9 (Retuers)-Assistant Treasury Secretary for International Affairs Fred Bergsten warned today Brazil and other relatively better off developing nations should begin phasing out export subsidies for their industries. He said in a speech before the Brazilian-American Chamber of Commerce in New York that the United States does not expect overnight elimination of subsidies, but commutment to freeze the existing level of subsidization of exports might be a first step. He said the United States faces serious pressures to restrict imports.

U.S. trade laws generally require the assessment of countervailing duties against goods whose production or export is subsidized by the government. The Treasury has aues, but Mr. Bergsten warned the authority expires nn Jan. 3.

The Washington Post reported this morning that the administration is prepared to sell Israel 20 additional F-15s in the mid-1980s. hringing the total in its air force to 60, the same number President Carter proposes to sell to Saudi Arabia.

Sen, Frank Church, D-Idaho, said another element he demands in any compromise is an assurance that Saudi Arabia will not add to its fleet of jets with purchases from France if Congress agrees to sell the 60 F-15s the administration has proposed.

President Carter wants to sell 60 sophisticated F-15 jet fighters to Saudi Arabia, 75 F-16s and 15 F-15s to Israel and 50 less sophisticated F-5Fs to Egypt.

Congress has 30 days, until May 28, to reject any or all of the sales by a resolution that must be approved by both the House and the Senate. The planes are to be delivered by the end of 1983 and administration aides began signaling congressmen through newspaper interviews last week that the only compromise Mr. Carter was willing to make, if necessary, is to sell Israel more planes

Members of the Senate committee had suggested before today's meeting with Mr. Vance that they were likely to approve rejection resolutions against the entire sale.

But Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd has said several times that he is confident the full Senate would reject those resolutions, providing congressional approval for the sale.

U.S. Unit Kills Curb on Credit To South Africa

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)— The Senate Banking Committee to-day rejected an effort to cut off-Export-Import Bank credit to South Africa.

The panel, after turning down the South Africa amendment, approved a bill increasing the bank's lending authority by 60 per cent and expanding the president's authority to determine what nations are eligible for credit. It requires him to consider not only the U.S. national interest but the recipient country's stand on human rights, emigration, nuclear proliferation, environmental pro-tection and other factors. The bank provides direct loans, guarantees and insurance to finance the sale of U.S. exports

The bill expands the bank's credit authority, now $25 billion, to $40 billion and extends its charter five years, until Sept. 30, 1983.

Similar legislation is pending in the House But the House Banking. Committee attached an amend-ment that cuts off credit to South Africa until President Carter determines that South Africa has made progress in eliminating apartheid

LARK. Utah, May 9 (AP)—Kennecott Copper Corp. announced yesterday that it would give Lark residents another year to move out of the doomed company-owned town, accept a relocation allowance of up to $1,500 and an offer to buy their bomes at 20 per cent above appraised value.

But Hilda Grabner, an 81-year-old widow who carried the town's plight to Kennecott's stockholders' meeting in New York last week, said the offer was "terrible."

"I disagree with it totally. It's not up to the expectations of the townspeople," she said after a meeting with company representa-

Robert Pratt, president of Kennecott's Utah Copper Division, made the proposal at a closed meeting with Mrs. Grabner and other town representatives. A six-member town committee presented no counterproposal, saying it wanted to discuss the offer with other residents first.

Ten days before Christmas, Kennecott announced that it was tearing down the town to make way for the expansion of its open-pit mine, the largest in the world. The company said it wanted to get out of the business of running towns.

Residents originally were given until this Aug. 31 to vacate. Yesterday's announcement moved the date to Aug. 31, 1979, and offered residents $1,000 to leave by then. A $500 bonus would be given if they move out by the original deadline.

The hilly town of mostly frame buildings has 107 families. Fiftyfour own their own bomes and 53 rent units acquired by the company last December, the firm said.

CLA Reportedly Supported Overthrow of Nkrumah

By Seymour M. Hersh NEW YORK, May 9 (NYT)— The CIA advised and supported a group of dissident army officers who overthrew the regime of Presi-dent Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana in February, 1966, firsthand intelligence sources said yesterday. The agency's role in the coup d'etat was carried out without prior approval from the high-level intera-gency group in Washington that monitors CIA clandestine activities, these sources said. That group, known in 1966 as the 303 Committee, had specifically rejected a pre-vious CIA request seeking authori-ty to plot against Nkrumah, who had angered the United States by maintaining close ties to the Soviet Union and China.

There was no immediate com-ment from the CIA. Although the CIA has often been investigated in the 12 years since Nkrumah was overthrown, there has never been any public disclo-sure of an agency role in the coup approval from higher beadquarters for the deployment of a small squad of paramilitary experts, members of the agency's Special Operations Group.

Those men, the sources said, were to wear blackface and attack the Chinese embassy during the coup, killing everyone there and de-stroying the building. The men also were to steal as much material as possible from the embassy's code

After some besitation, the sources said, high-level CIA officials in Washington decided against this

Details of the agency's purported role in the overthrow of Nkrumah became available after John Stockwell, a former CIA operative, briefly described it in a foomote to his newly published book, "In Search of Enemies."

 The Stockwell book, a highly critical inside account of the CIA's At one stage before the over- covert involvement in the Angolan classified Soviet military equipment

Mr. Stockwell, who served three tours as a clandestine operative in Africa during his 12-year CIA career, cited the Ghanaian incident in an attempt to buttress his contention that many CIA "problems" were solved in the field, and that nothing in the CIA records prove bow it happened."

In Ghana, Mr. Stockwell writes, after the CIA was taid by higher authorities not in try in oust Nkrumah, the station in Accra was "nevertheless encouraged by headquarters to maintain contact with dissidents of the Ghanaian army for the purpose of maintaining intelligence on their activities."

The account continued: It was given a generous budget and maintained intimate contact with the plotters as a coup was hatched. So close was the station's involvement that it was able to coordinate the recovery of some

Although the proposal concerning the Chinese embassy was disap-proved. Mr. Stockwell wrote, "in-side CIA headquarters the Accra station was given full, if unofficial credit for the eventual coup. None of this was adequately reflected in the agency's written records."

Other sources who were in Ghana at the time of the coup took issue with the view given in the Stockwell book that the CIA sta-tion in Accra deserved full credit for Nkrumah's overthrow.

Nkrumah had been the subject of one prior assassination attempt. At the time he was deposed, during a diplomatic trip to China, there were thousands of Ghanaians in jail without trial and growing opposition to his increasingly heavyhanded rule.

His overthrow was met with widespread approval by the citizens of Accra, according to press reports at the time. There were Soviet press reports that the CIA had played a

Urgency Felt on Overseas Tax

By Robert C. Siner

WASHINGTON, May 9 (IHT)-A determined effort to have the Senate act before Monday on a bill to revise the taxation of Americans living abroad is being mounted by the Senate Finance Committee, it was learned.

The move began with a special hearing yesterday morning to deal with problems that might be raised by a Library of Congress report sharply critical of the revision plan. It continued later with meetings of key staff aides trying to avoid protracted debate, which could doom the hill for the session. The aides were barely optimistic about Succeeding.

On Monday the Senate is scheduled to take up labor reform and once that comes to the floor, an nide said, it would be virtually impossible to take up any but the most urgent or noncontroversial

This would rule out any action before Americans living overseas have to file their U.S. tax returns. Representatives of overseas chambers of commerce, in meetings last week with members of Con-gress, said that it was urgent that the tax bill be taken up. They said that while the filing deadline is nominally June 15, tax returns had to be put into the mails in foreign countries days - even weeks earlier - because foreign postmarks are not recognized by the Internal Rev-

To get action before Monday, "we have to do it by consensus," a staffer said, adding that there would be no time for lengthy argu-ments on any but the most minor or nncontroversial amendments. He and other aides indeiated that the bill faced an almost now-or-never situation.

The bill would defer the foreign income provisions of the 1976 Tax Reform Act for income earned in 1977 and 1978. Income earned in 1979 and thereafter would be taxed under rules proposed by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., The revision would replace the income exclusion with special deductions for education, housing and cost-of-liv-

If the Senate passes the measure it must still go to conference with the House, which late last year passed a bill deferring the Reform Act provisions for one year. That bill was amended by the Senate Finance Committee to include the Ribicoff proposal and extend the deferral for an extra year.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., has indicated that he would: not try to strip the Ribicoff plan from the measure but would make The oath was administered by the president of the National As-sembly after outgoing President Oduber surrendered the symbolic some adjustments and modifications, while leaving the basic format intact.

Proximire Opposed

Any attempt to remove the Ribicoff provisions, either in the Senate or during the conference, and pass Tax Reform Act, is certain to run into opposition, especially from Sen. William Proximire, D-Wis.

Sen. Proximire, while supporting reform, has planned to submit numerous amendments to any bill that is limited to a deferral of the 1976 act. However, Sen. Proximire has supported the Ribicoff plan and probably will vote for it.

If the bill emerges from the conference it must then be approved by both houses and signed by President Carter before it becomes law. Monday morning, the Finance Committee took testimony on a report critical of the Ribicoff plan.

The report was made by the Library of Congress at the request of Scn. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.
The hearing was seen as an effort to head off the lengthy floor debate on the report.

Committee chairman Russell Long, D-La, set the tone of the hearings by emphasizing the importance of having Americans living overseas and the fact that the Tax

Enrollments are climbing each year, though they are still far below their levels of the early 1960s. In part, this resurgence is the result of a decision by the Army, Air Force in the 1971-1972 school year, has and Navy to dispense with some of re-emerged in a scaled-down form. their more onerous requirements. Uniforms are worn less often now, and the hours spent on the drill field have been reduced sharply. Freshmen and sophomores in the corps are subject to a minimum of regulation, and the curriculum has been made more flexible, enabling officers on each campus to design were only 20 participants when the their own courses.

Another reason for the resurgence is that the ranks have been opened to women, who now ac count for more than 20 per cent of ROTC students.

And the training now includes such activities as mountain-climb-ing, hackpacking and canoeing— activities that make participation in the corps something of a social ex-

Hua's North Korean Jaunt

When Zbigniew Brzezinski journeys to Peking the visit should comprise more than the mere courtesy and mild curiosity it originally seemed to involve. For Hua Kuo-feng, the current leader of the People's Republic of China, not only has made a trip outside his country's borders - very rare among Chinese Communist party chairmen - but he has gone to North Korea. And there he has attacked U.S. policy in the Korean peninsula with considerable vigor. Perhaps Mr. Brzezinski can discover why

To be sure. Red China's association with Red Korea has always been close. It was Chinese troops, crossing the Yalu, which prevented Korea from being unified by UN forces, after the latter had narrowly prevented North Korea from unifying the land by a massive assault with Soviet weapons. At that time. China and the Soviet Union were widely considered parts of a single Communist domain, and there are some now who believe that Mr. Hua is making placating gestures to Moscow by using the rhetorical club on the United States.

But Peking and Moscow were not subject to a single will then and certainly they are not now. Rather, their soldiers glower at one another over a long, uncertain frontier, and Korea is part of that debatable ground. After all. Russia and Japan fought bitterly over that territory less than 50 years before the Korean war, and China was deeply concerned over the outcome. The Yalu. Korea's northern border, has long loomed large to Chinese strategists, as has Korea itself, espe-

Therefore, when Mr. Hua belabored the and Washington.

U.S. occupation force in the South in much the same terms as have been used by Kim II Sung, the North Korean dictator who began the Korean war with his invasion of the South, it is by no means impossible that he was more intent on pleasing him than soothing the Kremlin. And that the United States was the target may have been largely coinci-

Washington cannot wholly ignore Mr. Hua's statements, of course, and concentrate on the defects of Seoul in human rights and

Mr. Hua could have had Taiwan in mind when he emphasized his belief that Kim's misnamed Democratic People's Republic was the legitimate government of Korea he wants Taiwan as Kim wants South Korea, and the United States is an obstacle to both these goals. And there could be an effect on Mr. Carter's policy of diminishing the U.S. presence in South Korea, which has already been modified. For the People's Republics of both China and Korea have a tendency to identify their armies with "the people" and Kim Il Sung can hardly be trusted to use wholly peaceful means to bring about Korean unification.

So the problem of Korea is one that Mr. Brzezinski might well explore in Peking not on the assumption that it necessarily involves a breach between China and the United States but as one of several questions that remain unanswered between the two states. Certainly Mr. Hua's jaunt, and the comments it elicited, make it clear that there is still a considerable distance between Peking

The U.S. Stake in a Tax Treaty

For a generation, except in the recession year of 1977, the exports of the industrial countries have been climbing annually about twice as fast as production, spurring growth rates, income and prosperity. That growth has depended on the reduction of barriers to international trade and investment, but many impediments remain. One of them is the discriminatory taxation of U.S. investments abroad, and it can be significantly reduced if the Senate this week approves a new tax treaty with Britain, It would also reduce discriminatory taxation of British companies in the United States; unfortunately, it is opposed by several state governments that fear the loss of revenue. The two-thirds vote needed for ratification is in doubt.

The pending pact, arduously negotiated over three years, would replace and modernize a 1945 treaty. The major gain for U.S. investors is a provision that would grant them relief from the double taxation of business income as it appears as corporate earnings and dividends. Britons now get such relief in the form of tax credits; the new treaty would qualify Americans for cash refunds and put them on much the same footing.

Refunds of about $85 million a year are at stake. A retroactive payment of $375 million for the 1973-78 period would also be made a not insignificant boost for the dollar, as the Treasury has observed. Moreover, the treaty would set a standard for similar negotiations with West Germany, France, Canada and other nations. Its approval clearly would serve U.S. interests.

Because the United States continues to tax both corporate earnings and dividend distributions, it had to offer Britain other concessions to gain the treaty. The one that has aroused the greatest opposition would limit a type of taxation by state governments that discriminates against subsidiaries of British companies. Several governors have invoked the cry of "states' rights" to challenge the treaty. Tax officials of a dozen states have written to President Carter protesting that such treaties would significantly reduce the revenues of 32 states and also create a chance for tax evasion by U.S.-controlled multinational companies,

The treaty would prohibit states from taxing subsidiaries for any part of the income of a parent company outside the state. However, the Treasury would help the states to apply the complicated "arm's length" calcula-tions used by the federal government to guard against the understating of a subsidiary's profits. A letter from Treasury Secretary Blumenthal to the 50 governors argues persuasively that this should adequately protect their taxing power. Blumenthal also argues that the revenue losses are likely to be small and will probably be offset by new investments that the present system now discourages. He offers assurances that present taxing methods would continue to apply to U.S.-controlled multinational companies.

California, with the largest stake in the present system, is now supporting ratification. Gov. Brown evidently discovered on a trip to Tokyo that prospects for Japanese assembly plants and other investments in California would be improved by such tax changes. The national interest, too, will be served if the Senate rejects the proposed reservations and approves the treaty.

Malaria on the March

A decade ago it seemed that malaria, the disease that once regularly reached epidemic proportions throughout much of the world, would soon be conquered. In 1955, after the disease had struck 250 million people, killing more than 2 million, the World Health Organization launched a worldwide malaria eradication program. The effort was extraordinarily successful. By 1965 the number of malaria cases had dropped to a low of 107 million. In recent years, however, officials of WHO and the UN Environmental Program (UNEP) report, the incidence of malaria has risen sharply — more than 1 million people died from it in 1976. The United States has scarcely been affected by the increase (the number of reported U.S. cases rose by only 100 in 1976-1977). But an outbreak of malaria can have a devastating effect on countries in Africa, Asia and South America - which is where the sharp increases bave occurred.

In fact, the resurgence of this deadly disease stems from the very success of the at-tempts to eradicate it. UNEP officials say that the malaria parasite, after 20 years of concentrated exposure to attack, has become immune to what were the most effective antimalaria drugs, and more species of malariacarrying mosquitoes are becoming immune to pesticides. Fortunately, these separate developments have not occurred in the same geographical areas - yet.

Since the damage done to the environment by DDT and other mosquito insecticides now prevents their use on a widespread scale, bow can the spread of malaria be checked? The development of probably the most effective anti-malaria weapon, a vaccine, is still years away. So the temporary answer appears. to be using a variety of different methods to control mosquitoes, such as draining swamps, stocking mosquito-breeding water with fish that eat their larvae, and chemically sterilizing the insects. Each of these methods has its limitations but at the moment they are all that is available. The resurgence of malaria poses a threat to world health perhaps even greater than that which prompted the WHO eradication program of the 1950s. A new, more technologically sophisticated eradication effort needs to be mounted now. That is what has prompted discussions in recent months between officials of UNEP, which will sponsor the project and WHO. which will provide the doctors and researchers to carry it out. They well replize the urgency of such an effort. Millions of lives depend on it. THE WASHINGTON POST

Here una-bashedly loud and fleshy, there ir-ridescent and subtle, the very quality, the texture of the paint, is her subject. The shapes in her wild-seeming yet intuitively controlled abstractions are like giant shells, barbacles, slices of edibles or steps of grainy pebbly stone. American Center in Paris Launches Its Renaissance

By Jane M. Friedman

PARIS, May 9 (IHT)—Francois Mitterrand, chief of the French Socialist party, sent his regrets. So did Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac. The former publisher JeanJacques Servan-Schreiber sneaked out before the performance began. Nevertheless, the revival of the American Center for Students and Artists, founded in 1931 but fallen on hard times of late, got off to a promising start last night.

in an auditorium that looked like an elementary school assembly hall with a stage in front, 250 selected Paris guests came to watch a performance called "Dialogue," with composer John Cage and dancer Merce Cunningham. The two American artists were recruited for the fund-raising event by Judith Pisar, chairman of the American Center board and wife of East-West trade expert Samuel Pisar.

After the performance, which met with mixed reaction, Ambassa-dor and Mrs. Arthur Hartman threw a dinner in the American Embassy residence on the Rue du Faubourg St. Honore. The former minister of culture. Francoise Giroud. attended. So did Mrs. Gerard Montassier, the French President's older daughter. The evening represented the be-ginning of what Mrs. Pisar called a "renaissance" for the center. Founded by a group of rich Americans who wanted to keep their children off the streets, the center—a private institution in Montparnasse-became a respected meeting place for American and French artists and writers. At one time or another, Andre Malraux, William de Kooning and James Jones either exhibited or lectured there.

Youth Power

But in the late 1960s, after May '68, the center was invaded by youngsters, who took it over. It was frequented by drug addicts. The building—with its 1930s beaux arts-style architecture on a two-acre park—became a community center with banal courses rather than a meeting place for artists and intel-lectuals. Today, the outside wall, painted graffit style in bright col-ors, is a remnant of the youth-pow-er period which finally disintegrat-

Two years ago, Judith Pisar was asked to join the center's board of governors, which includes economist Jacques Artali. Last year, she became the chairman. "I accepted on two conditions," said Mrs. Pisar. 39, the former music director of the Brooklyn Academy of Music in New York, "That we would make this a place of cultural exchange and remodel the physical be done in phases.

Last night's ballet was an at tempt to show potential donors what the center will do in the future. Both Mrs. Pisar and the center's director for development, Don Foresta, say they want to turn it into a "Franco-American university for the arts" where French and American artists will not only perform but conduct workshops and give lectures. The ballet celebrated a "spring festival" which actually began two weeks ago and will run through the beginning of next month. The festival includes workshops on video and dance by Merce Cunningham, workshops with John Cage, a performance by organist and composer Philip Glass ("Einstein on the Beach"), three exhibits by environmental artists and a series of videotapes from the United States.

The Cunningham-Cage performance, which lasted an bour, seemed incomprehensible to many of the celebrities gathered to see it. Some fell asleep, and one woman spent the time applying makeup.

While Cunningham danced the three segments of the performance on the floor below the stage, Cage concocied a symphony for dried cacius, gourds, heartbeats and an alonal tape of his own voice, which he recorded and mixed on stage. After the performance. Cage, dressed in jeans and a denim jacket, said that the eight-tone theme he sang formed the words Eric Satie. musical mentor. "Isn't it amazing?" he Cage said of his 36year association with Cunningham as fans gathered around. Of the performance, he said, "We leave each other free. Each does his own work. You interpret it according to your own experience."

CBI Says Industry Is Stagnating

But Investment Plans In U.K. Are Strong

LONDON May 9 (AP-DJ)—The Confederation of British Industry (CBI) said today that "the general picture in manufacturing industry has again been one of stagnation or little better."

Commenting on its latest quarterly survey of industrial trends made last month after the budget message, the group said: "The main message of this survey is that manufacturing industry in total is far from busy." The CBI said that optimism about the general husiness situation had not improved and a near-term pickup in manufacturing activity is not likely. Nearly 80 per-cent of the 2,000 companies sur-veyed reported poor demand and weak expon prospects due to a de-terioration in prospects due to a deterioration in price competitiveness and depressed overseas markets.

However, the CBI said invest-ment intentions remain quite strong cost increases are becoming less widespread and the financial position of manufacturing companies is not worsening.

On order backlogs, 45 percent said they were below normal, 13 percent said above normal and 41 percent said order books were normal. Seventy percent said order backlogs were less than four months. The supper also showed months. The survey also showed that two-thirds of Britain's manufacturers were working below

Raise Rates

LONDON, May 9 (AP-DJ)-Britain's major commercial banks announced sharp increases in their lending charges today amid strong indications that the recent rise in U.K. interest rates is not yet over.

The four major clearing banks-Barclays, Nau onal Westminster, Lloyds and Midland-boosted their hase lending rates to 9 from 7.5 percent, following the Bank of England's decision last Friday to raise its minimum lending rate (MLR) to 8.75 from 7.5 percent.

Blue chip industrial borrowers normally pay I percentage point above the base rate for their loans. The banks also increased to 6 from 4 percent the interest they pay on savings and seven-day deposits.

Although some money market participants had expected the MLR to peak for the moment at 8.75 percent. Treasury bills, to which the MIR is normally linked, traded today at levels which would call for a 9 percent MLR this Friday. The announcement late in the day of a sharp rise of eligible liabiliries of U.K. banks also signalled the likelihood of a further rise in interest rates, analysis said. The Bank of England announced that banks' eligible liabilities-the major component in the money supply figures—rose £1.316 hillion to £43.889 billion in the month ended April 19. Japanese Fear Global Crash Worry Is Low Growth Feeding Protectionism

By Leonard Silk

NEW YORK. May 9 tNYT)—The danger of a world depression—and the political and military disasters to which it might give rise—are very much on the minds of Japa-nese leaders today. Nobuhiko Ushiba, Min-ister of External Economic Affairs, says he sees an alarming parallel between world economic conditions today and those at the start of the depression of the 1930s. He is particularly worried about the threat of protectionism and the fragility of the world monetary system with an unstable dollar.

"There is no question." he said, "that the depression led to World War 11." How to prevent a recurrence of that tragic sequence of events is the dominant worry of Japan's government.

There is little room for optimism on the part of either developed or developing countries," Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda recently told the Japan Society here, "t am deeply concerned that, unless we find a way out a situation may develop where world stability and peace are endangered."

Fears Protectionism

Mr. Ushiba in an interview here a few days ago, said that Japan's worry was that, in the present disordered state of the world economy, country after country might be driven to take protectionist measures, with a ruinous impact on world trade.

Mr. Ushiha acknowledged that he faced strong protectionist pressures from troubled industries in his own country. The most severe of these, he said, were from the farm lobby. "So far." he said, "the government has been successful, I think, in containing those pressures." But as a small island nation, he says Japan is at a big disadvantage in agriculture, "We are not competitive," he said. "Nevertheless, we must maintain some amount of agricultural production. tain some amount of agricultural production as a basis for the security of the nation.

He was cautious in saying how much Ja-pan would reduce its halance-of-payments surplus this year. "We will slash it as much as possible," he said. However, be noted that the target figure of a $6-billion currentaccount surplus-including trade and ser-

FASB 8 was born in controversy two and a half years ago, out of the accounting chaos that characterized the financial reporting of U.S. companies' foreign operations. The rule suddenly forced companies to reflect in current earnings the impact of foreign-exchange gains and losses, however theoretical they make the companies to reflect in current earnings the impact of foreign-exchange gains and losses, however theoretical they might be companied to the companies to the companies to the companies of the compa

FASB 8 gained notoreceive as the creator of "paper lossincluding a novel technique called an intercorporate currency agreees" that often ruined the otherwise ment-are becoming more comstrong operating results of many mon, large multinationals. But the picture can change overnight, depending on the pattern of currency flucluations.

Take the hypothetical example of a company that bad a $10 million loan outstanding in a foreign currency, one unit of which equaled $1. If, at the end of the first quarter, the dollar weakened and a unit of the foreign currency equaled $1.05, the company must record its foreign deht as $10.5 million and absorb a $500,000 foreign translation loss. But if the dollar strengthened a hit at the end of the second quarter and the foreign currency would equal $1.04, the debt would be recorded as $10.4 million and the company would chalk up a $100,000 foreign translation gainnone of which changed in any way the "real" debt exposure of the company.

Worse Rules

Not surprisingly, corporate executives at first roundly criticized the Standards Board—the private sec-tor body that promulgated the rule. "FASB 8 is the worst set of rules for foreign exchange accounting I have ever heard of-except for all the others anyone has ever shown me," a senior vice president of Exxon once said

Patricia Harrigan, a vice president of Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., said of the adverse corporate reaction: "In the beginning, they thought that if they shouted loud enough, it would go away."

There are growing signs, however, that FASB 8 is no longer the big irritant it once was.

A recent example was Chrysler Corp. and its report of a $49-million loss in the fourth quarter of 1977. Only when a trade publication inquired did the company disclose that $37 million—three-quar-ters of the loss—was due to currency fluctuations. Chrysler explained that, for one thing, it has never bro-ken out results for the final period. Besides," said Pierre Gagnier, the company's manager of accounting. "we would have come across as being defensive, saying if it hadn't been for all this lousy luck, and

FASB 8, we'd be O.K.' The Standards Board feels somewhat vindicated by this new attitude since it has insisted all along

The developing countries accepted the new restrictions mainly to avoid unilateral import curbs by industrialized countries which might have been imposed in the absence of the agreement, a report by the Unctad secretarial says. It de-scribes the 1973 textile treaty procrease of exports by textile-producing developing countries as a 'fair weather instrument" that has "broken down in the situation of a world-wide depression."

The Multifiber Arrangement was amended five months ago to allow "jointly agreed reasonable depar-tures" from its basic rule of 6-percent export growth for developing nations. The original treaty was to expire Dec. 31 and the Common Market opposed its extension say-ing it had led to closure of 3,500 texule factories and the loss of 500,000 jobs in the EEC in the first three years of its operation.

Orders Jump 90% in Japan

TOKYO, May 9 (AP-DJ)-Japanese industrial machinery orders rose 90.4 percent in March from the previous month and were up 18.2 percent from a year earlier, the Japan Industrial Machinery Association said

Orders totaled about 630.6 hillion yen (ahout $2.8 hillion)—a record for March but below the record 695.6 billion ven in September 1976. Export orders in march totaled 160.5 billion yen, up 19.2 percent from the previous month and up 16.9 percent from a year earlier.

For the fiscal year ended
March, orders rose 10.2 percent from the previous year to about 4.17 trillion yen. Export orders in the year rose 26.9 percent to about 1.9 trillion yen, the association said.

Free Trade Advocates U.K. Aid Critical Of Hypocrisy

LONDON, May 8 (AP-DJ)— Preservation of the post-war open trading system in the current diffi-cult economic circumstances will require "some departures from free trading purity," Edmund Dell, Brit-ain's secretary of state for trade, ain's secretary of state for trade, said today.

Proclaiming himself to be a pragmatist in economic matters, Mr. Dell was highly critical of countries that frequently espouse the virtues of free trade, but do not practice what they preach. He singled out West Germany, particularly with respect to agriculture.

Mr. Dell keyed his remarks to a speech last week by West German Economics Minister Otto Lambsdorff to a meeting of Common Market foreign ministers in Brussels. Mr. Lambsdorff, who made it clear his remarks were timed to coclear his remarks were timed to co-incide with a decision by the EEC commission to tighten surveillance on shoe imports, warned against the dangers of spreading protec-tionism and excessive government intervention in industries needing to be "restructured."

Mr. Dell said that while he shared Mr. Lambsdorff's concerns, the Bonn minister had not sufficiently incorporated certain considerations into his arguments. The danger of retaliation against pro-tectionist actions arises not only in the field of manufactured products,

"I find quite as much objection among our overseas customers to the protectionism of the community in agriculture. They do not un-derstand by what logic major in-dustrialized countries can argue a free trade case in manufactured goods but deny it in agriculture," he remarked.

"I confess not to have detected "I confess not to have detected on the part of West Germany any great entbusiasm for liberalizing access for agricultural products and for allowing international market forces to play on inefficient agriculture," Mr. Dell suggested that the West Germans—and others—tend to favor free competition only in areas where they are able to compete. In depressed industries, the problems of adjustment to more efproblems of adjustment to more efficient competitors creates political problems to which all nations to some extent submit, he observed. "They lead, for example, to German government support for such anti-competitive market-sharing proposals as the United Nations liner code," he said.

Mr. Dell concluded by saying he In Uranium Price-Fixing was optimistic that the open trading system could be preserved, hut that "accomodations," "compromises," and "departures from freetrading purity" would be required. Elaborating on his remarks, senior British government sources said that the advantages of being a developing country are now so great that some of the more competitive nations among them—South Korea, Taiwan, Brazil and India,

ing up that status as far as trade practices are concerned.
Industrialized countries will not accept for long the "anomalous situation" under which highly competitive developing countries are al-lowed to protect their domestic producers from foreign competition yet launch their surpluses freely on the world market, they said. The EEC will become more protec-tionist unless the commercially advanced developing contries allow hetter balance in exchanges of manufactured goods.

NEW YORK. May 9 (Reuters)—
Wall Street failed in another attempt to continue its recent rally today as prices on the New York Stock Exchange closed narrowly lower in relatively quiet trading.

Analysis attributed the pullback to profit-taking. Investor concern was underlined by White House aide Stuart Eizen-stat who told the National Finance Council of the Democratic National Committee he was concerned about the continued rise in interest rates, which he said may undercut rates, which he said may undercut the economic recovery.

Prices began drifting lower after the opening in an extension of yesterday's moderate loss. A brief recovery in the morning was attributed to the dollar's continued strength in foreign exchange trading in Function.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 2.51 to 822.07. Declining issues led advances 811-to-675 and volume slipped to 30.86 million shares from 34.68 million yesterday.

Prices again rose on the American Stock Exchange, however. The market-value index gained 0.14 to 140.18 and the average price per hare was up one cent. Boeing was a standout as the Big Board's most actively traded stock, jumped 2½ to 49 after the an-nouncement of its contract with Singapore International Airlines.

Lockheed rose 4 to 24% after the company said it may resume paying dividends soon and expects to conclude a $475-million contract with the U.S. Air Force for 279

Jewelcor fell % to 5% after the jewelcy concern said it agreed to acquire Basco for stock. Combined Communications, planning to merge with Gannett, dropped 2% to 40%.

Gulf Oil Charged By U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 9 (Reuters)-The Justice Department loday charged Gulf Oil with conspiring with other uranium producers in the early 1970s to fix the prices at which uranium from abroad would be sold in the United States.

The charge, a misdemeanor, was the first to result from an 18-month government investigation of an international uranium cartel. The written statement of charges against Gulf did not identify the other alleged conspirators. It men-tioned them only as "various corporations, firms, entities and individuals." Gulf was charged with conspir-ing with other producers between February 1972 and December 1974 to fix prices at which they would scll foreign-produced uranium to such U.S. middlemen as nuclear reactor manufacturers and nuclear fuel fabricators that purchase uranium for resale. The company was also accused of refusing to sell at all to Westinghouse Electric Corp. If convicted Gulf could be fined $50,000.

A spokesman for the Justice Department's anti-trust division said the criminal action against Gulf would be the only one resulting from the investigation. The inquiry extablished that Gulf was the only U.S. company involved in the cartel, he said. But he added that civil lawsuits may be brought against some participants in the conspiracy.

Meanwhile in Chicago, Gulf filed a suit against Westinghouse Electric claiming it conspired to monopolize the nuclear steam supply system, fabricated nuclear fuel and uranium markets. Gulf said it filed the suit in response to Westinghouse's suit against Gulf and 29 other uranium produces charging a conspiracy to fix the price of uranium.

Record 747 Jet Order

Singapore Line

Re-Equips Fleet

LONDON, May 9 (AP-DJ)—Singapore International Airlines said today it plans to buy nearly $900 million worth of aircraft from Boeing—the largest single contract in aviation history.

SIA plans to buy 13 Boeing 747's and six 727's. The order is scheduled to be signed in New York tomorrow. Ten of the 747's are "firm orders," the airline said in a statement released in London. Two of the widebodied airliners will be delivered at the end of 1979, six in delivered at the end of 1979, six in 1980 and one each in 1981 and 1982. The contract includes options on three 747's to be delivered one a year beginning 1983.

Of the six smaller 727's, SIA said, four are firm orders for delivery next year, while the remaining two are on option.

The company did not mention financing for the order, but industry sources in New York noted that SIA is government owned and both the airline and the government "have lots of cash." In addition, there may be Export-Import Bank financing for at least a portion of the order. SIA also is one of the fastest growing airlines in the world racking up 25 percent gains in traffic growth in recent years compared with 10 percent traffic gains for U.S. airlines last year.

The main reason behind such a large contract, the airline said, was large contract, the airline said, was that SIA plans to dispose of its current fleet of seven 74Ts. The newer model 74Ts are equipped with more powerful engines developed by United Technologies' Pratt & Whitney unit. The engines enable the aircraft to carry a higher payload and travel further between stops. The aircraft itself will be the heaviest version of the Boeing 747 heaviest version of the Boeing 747 ever built, with maximum takeoff weight of 820,000 pounds com-pared with 775,000 pounds current-

SIA also cited lower fuel consumption and maintenance costs in choosing the new 747's. It said Pratt & Whitney has agreed to guarantee the cost of maintenance and overhaul of the engines.

"Financially," SIA said it "was emboldened to take this decision by its policy of depreciating air-craft in the short period of six years. By 1980, when the current fleet is sold, three aircraft will be fully depreciated and the entire average unwritten-off life of all seven aircraft will be just nne year."

By 1980, Singapore Airlines ex-pects its modernization program to be substantially completed. The airline will then have 10 new 747's. five McDonnell-Douglas DC-10's. five Boeing 707's and 12 Boeing 727's. "The average age of our aircraft, weighted by seats, will be one (Continued on Page 13, Col. 5)

Banque Leclerc Lost Up to $199 Million

GENEVA, May 9 (AP-DJ)-Losses of Banque Leclerc, the Geneva bank closed last year by federal authorities, totaled up to 394 million Swiss francs (about $199 million), the liquidators said today.

Creditors were told they could expect a refund of 9 percent and were given 30 days to react to the proposed settlement. If more than one-third turn down the offer, bankruptcy proceedings would be instituted, automatically cancelling the offer by Ste. Bancaire Barclay's, the Swiss unit of the British bank, to acquire Leclerc.

Plan Would Clear Way for $800 Million in Credits

By Jonathan Randal

KHARTOUM (WP)-Sudan is refusing in devalue the pound and impose other stringent reforms set by the International Monetary Fund as the price for bailing nut its nearly bankrupt economy.

Apparently mindful that riots and revolutions have accompanied IMF-imposed refinems in other countries, Sudan's president, Jaalar Mineri, so far has refused the terms which would lead to a soft-loan package worth potentially more than $800 million. Worked out late last year by the IMF, the package is said to have featured some $130 million in IMF help—and as much as $700 million in soft loans from Saudi Arabia. In February, Mr. Nimeri went to Riyadh determined to convince King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd that they should help him over his short-term problems. He argued this was the best—indeed the only—way to protect their multi-billion-dollar investment programs designed in turn Sudan into the Middle East's bread basket.

Open-Ended Payments

But Saudi financial experts were reported to have convinced the top leadership that sidestepping IMF conditions would involve them in npen-ended cash payments, such as those provided to similarly insol-vent Egypt, albeit on a smaller scale.

Sudanese insiders do not expect the government to be able to delay some form of decision beyond Jane, when the new budget normally should be approved. The IMF is believed to have asked not just for devaluation, but also for significant cutbacks in government expendi-tures and in the ambitious multipillion-dollar development plan which is aimed at tripling the present per capita income to $290 by 1995.

Government officials argue that devaluation will do little to solve year" by 1980, it concluded, giving it "probably the most modern and well-balanced fleet of any airline." The transaction was kept so se-cret that even some U.S. aircraft producers in competition with Boe-ing were completely unaware uf the sale until contacted by a reporter.

The largest single sale previously was the recent Eastern Air Lines' order of $778 million for 24 Airbus Industries aircraft.
From Singapore, the hub of Asian business activity, the airline flies to Tokyo, Osaka, Scoul, Jakaria, Bangkok, Manila, Hong Kong and Taipei, "That southeast Asian area is where all the growth is—much faster than in other parts of the world," one airline analyst said. SIA also has routes to Australia, the Mideast and Europe, including Athens, Rome, Zurich, Frankfurt, Paris, Amsterdam, Copenhagen and London. The airline currently only flies cargo to the U.S. but will initiate passenger service to San Francisco next April

J.Y.M. Pillay, chairman of SIA, said he expects growth rates of about 20 percent a year for the next five years. One analyst noted that with traffie growth rates of 20-to-25 percent a year compounded, "The airline has been doubling in size every four years."

Japan's surplus in trade alone last year was $20 billion. Mr. Ushiba suggested that his country would be doing well to get that figure down in $12 billion or $13 billion this year. The most important thing Japan can do to reduce this surplus he said is "note rapid ex-

They talk vaguely of a two-tier sys-tem for the Sudanese pound over the next four nr five years. The cur-rency already varies in value from the nfficial $2.87 for official busi-ness tn $2.51 for tourists, $1.67 for Sudanese workers in foreign countries remitting hard currency, and between $1.40 and $1.50 on free currency markets abroad.

The Sudan's problems reflect a classic web of Third World economics. The central bank has no reserves worth mentioning. The country's credit rating is near zero. Juffation is running officially at 25 percent, but that figure is considered a wild underestimation; foreign loans cat up nearly one-third of export earnings; the trade deficit is enormous, and the budget deficit is financed by printing money.

.No Foreign Exchange

The country's only port—Port Sudan—is badly clogged. Sixty of the railways' 150 locomotives are sidetracked for lack of spare parts—unavailable because there is Illustrative of the government's dilemma are reports that civil ser-vants in the provinces have not been paid, and the steady drain of skilled and semiskilled workers in Saudi Arabia and other better-paying, oil-rich countries. Some of those tensions surfaced recently in strikes—theoretically illegal—in-volving technicians demanding better pay.

Nor is there any real hope that the Sudanese economic problems will improve meaningfully in the immediate future. Foreign analysts estimate that the payoff from the big investment projects may require seven to 10 years before the country can reach anything approaching balance on its international trans-rates the rates that were in effect the day they were acquired.

All "monetary" items, primarily debt and accounts receivable, are also translated, but at current rates, or the rates in effect at the close of the quarter.

Most companies finance their inventories through local borrowings. When the dollar falls against other currencies, as it did in 1977, the company records a translation "loss" because it theoretically takes more dollars to pay off the local debt. This loss must be recorded on corporate books immediately even though the loan may not have to be repaid for years, and may not be paid in dollars at all, but out of local currency flows.

Losses Offset

However, this "loss" can be offset in subsequent quarters when the inventories are sold by two things. First, assuming the foreign currency continues to strengthen, those inventories acquired at a rela-tively low historic cost will show up as a smaller figure in cost-of-goods sold. Second, the sales of the company's overseas operations will now have a greater value when measured in dullars, and therefore gross profit margins will be greater.
"It's what I call the double whammy," said David Norr, an analyst with First Manhattan Co. He

The first quarter results of Exxon continued to show such an effect. In reporting that net income rose 5.4 percent, to $680 milion, during the period, the world's biggest of company also disclosed that "the weakening of the dollar late in 1977 and during the first quarter of 1978 contributed to the increase in earnings from operations." The impact of foreign currency fluctuations on accounts receivable and debt carried on the balance sheet are reported immediately, but the subsequent impact on operating carnings is difficult to quantify. FASB 8 does not have a uni-

U.S. Source Sudan Refuses IMF Austerity Measures For Cash Narrowing

By John H. Allan

NEW YORK, May 9 INYTH The U.S. Treasury has been bor-rowing heavily not only from for-eign nations but also from states and cities in this country. It is be-coming clear, however, that these two bountiful sources of ready cash will not make loans so freely in the months ahead. In which case, interest rates are likely in rise.

Last year foreign countries bought $31.5 billion of the securities the Treasury sold to help finance its deficit. States and other local governments purchased $13.5 billion, Altogether, these two sources provided $45 billion of the $52.1 hillion the Treasury borrowed last

If these two sources decide not in lend the United States so much, other securities buyers will have to be found. And, to attract them, interest rates could very well have to

Foreigners Are Selling

Foreign central banks have al-ready cut back their holdings of Treasury securities, by almost $4 billion, within the last month. Last week the Internal Revenue Service proposed regulations that would cut back purchases of Treasury securities by states and cities after

Right now the Treasury is enjoying the respite it customarily gets in the April-May-June quarter as tax receipts outrun expenditures, so the covernment's debt managers are able to reduce the national debt slightly, if only temporarily. Later in the year, however, the Treasury will step up its borrowing, and that is when the absence of foreign and local buying will begin to be felt, perhaps acutely.

Much depends on the strength of the dollar. If it weakens again in foreign-exchange trading as it did in 1977 and early 1978, foreign central banks would again have plenty of excess dollars as they buy currency in an effort to keep their one. rency in an effort to keep their own currencies from rising too fast. They would thus tend to renew their purchase of Treasury hills and

Holdings Peaked

Foreign countries began to huy Treasury securities in earnest late last August as the dollar's value began to drop sharply. The Federal Reserve's holdings of Treasury issues for foreign central banks and international accounts jumped from $60.72 billion on Aug. 31, to a peak of $89.04 hillion on April 12—a whopping $28.32 hillion increase. Since then, however, these custody holdings have failen to $85.16 hillion.

firmness," said Richard Kelly, special assistant for deht management participation ol foreign banks will dwindle, perhaps appre-

That would tend in accentuate the rise in interest rates that started in mid-April when the Fed custody holdings peaked. Other factors (most important is the Fed's decision April 19 to raise interest rates) also helped cause the trend toward higher rates, of course.

States Cut Back

The growth of state and local government purchases of Treasury securities in the mid-1970s has also been impressive. In 1975 the Treasury raised $634 million by selling nonmarketable securities to states and cities. In 1976 that jumped to $3.2 billion and last year to $9.4 billion. In the first four months this year, sales of nonmarketable Treasury securities to states and cities ran at an annual rate of $11 billion.

Most of the money has come from bond issues that local governments have sold to refund bonds with higher interest rates that were marketed during the tight-money period of 1974-75. While such financial operations are complex. they usually involve investment of the proceeds of the new bonds in nonmarketable U.S. securities.

Within the next week, more than a dozen states and cities will rush to sell an estimated $2 billion of socalled invested sinking fund bonds—much of which is invested in Treasury securities - before the Mny 16 eutoff announced last week by the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS is seeking to stop sales of such bonds because it does not approve of local governments making profits by selling tax-exempt bonds and investing the money in higher-yielding taxable government securito have rescued William Faulkner from critical neglect; and to have been the first editor to publish John Cheever constitutes a career for which no man of letters need apolo-gize. And Malcolm Cowley, at 79, is not exactly apologizing. His prose, as always, is lean and sinewy. His moral metrocome, as usual, ticks away. His acumen and liberal sympathies are, as ever, manifest. There are fine moments of humor and anger throughout "— And I Worked at the Writer's Trade."

But there is also a wistfulness. He is troubled. Something nags him, a failed chance of some sort, I is as if be misses a cherished civility, both literary and political, in the world that has come to be. It is also as if he is disappointed in himself, without quite knowing why. Cow-ley raises questions, and then slips away. A disquieting tension is unresolved.

—And I Worked at the Writer's Trade" is partly a series of appreci-ations: of the well-knowo (Hemingway, Faulkner, Conrad Aiken. Erskine Caldwell) and the unknown or forgotten (the novelist and critic Robert M. Coates, the poet S. Foster Damon). It is partly fragments of autobiography: Harvard, Green-wich Village, Paris, the New Republic, the National Institute and the American Academy of Arts and Letters. And it is partly a sequel to "The Literary Situation": how writers group themselves in generations; inspiration and discipline; personal ethics and transcendent art; story-telling versus metafic-

There is not a page here without the watermark and signature of intelligence. Hemingway is defended against the "particides" and "jackals" who would reduce his achievement to a handful of short stories. Faulkner is preserved from silly neo-Freudian babblers. Aiken is praised for his resolute shyness, devotion to craft and unfashionable indifference to fashion. Coates and Damon are mourned; they didn't know how to promote themselves; they were strangers to the celebrity rucket, the marketing of a As Clarence Britten at The Dial was kind to an undergraduate Cowley, so Cowley at The New Republic will be kind to a teen-aged John Cheever, although he doesn't men-tion it. (I am reminded of William Buckley jr., who in 1959 at the Na-tional Review was kind to such odd Wills, Joan Didion, Renata Adler and me. We ought never to forget.) As for the writer, every writer, "No complete son-of-a-bitch," he says. "ever wrote a good sentence." This is extremism in the defense of civility. He goes too far, which is as it should be. One quarrels with many of his opinions, which is also as it should be: He is a critic, oot a pharmacist or a bartender. Is "For Whom the Bells Tolls" really "the mosi complex and powerful of Hemingway's works"? At the risk of sounding like a jackal, I demur. Cowley commends it for its political sensitivity. I think be misses the point. The objection to "For Whom the Bell Tolls" is not to its politics. but to its windy and unconscious self-parody. (For Robert Jordan without the heavy breathing io

TO HAVE written "Exile's short pants, see Mathieu at the end of the first half of Jean-Paul tion" and "A Second Flowering"; Sartre's "Iroo in the Sout," nine years later.)

Never mind, Cowley is more entitled to his opinions than I am to mine. He knew these people, who are our literary fathers. I'm not so sure he knew our mothers; women are scarce here, except, alas, for Sara Davidson who seems to have told him all be feels he needs to know about the 1960s. And I wish he had said something about the Jews in our literature; one reference each to Mailer and Heller is not enough. Black writers are also invisible. Still, an hooorable manone of Jules Romains's "men of goodwill"—has written an honora-ble book, for which we ought to be (and I am) grateful.

Then why does he feel bad? I don't believe that I've imagined this ominous qualm. Is it because he didn't pursue the poetry with gusto after 1929? Because he stayed 100 long as an editor of the New Republic, a literary bureaucrat from 1929 until 1944, when he should have been writing books? Or because he was, in his mind and his editing, too easy oo Stalinism during the same period? He hints at all three, but then fades away, I suspect Stalin bothers him the most and that he won't forgive himself for a coofusion of politics and literature that forced him, ultimately, to abandon politics altogether. If I am right about Cowley, then he is wrong about himself. It was a century for mistakes. He is still a here of the culture we breathe.

West's heart queen opening lead on the diagrammed deal is covered by the king and ace. South ruffs and plays the spade queen, giving East a problem when he wins with the ace. The routine play is to cootinue hearts, but East should see that the routine play has oo chance: The declarer will persevere with trumps and then establish diamonds, so two spade tricks and one diamond will be the limit for the East should work out that the de-fense needs a club trick and it is no use waiting for someone else to lead the suit. He should return club five, which serves to defeat the contraci as the cards lie. The queen wins in dunmy, but South has to drive out the spade oce and the diamond king and he goes one down since the defense scores its club trick in time.

Two subtle poiots are worth noting. East should shift to a low club rather than an honor, because he wants south to misguess with 10 8

x. And South's play of the heart king on the first trick, normally an oot a wise move, was good here because it made it easy for East to continue hearts, which was what declarer wanted.

Senate Votes Sports Panel

WASHINGTON, May 9 (UPI)—In an effort to end factional disputes that have affected the quality of U.S. teams in Olympic and international competition, the Senate has approved legislation to bring all amateur athletics under the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The bill, passed yesterday and sent to the House, follows a twoyear study on how to expand athletic opportunities and improve the world-class athletes fielded by the United States.

The bill makes the USOC the coordinating body for all amateur sports organizations and makes other changes that are expected to benefit the amateur athlete.

Included are new methods of settling organizational disputes over the right to be the recognized national governing body in a sport, fi-nancing sports more effectively, identifying and solving sports prob-lems and inducing all organizations with major programs in a sport to join the national governing body so their activities can be coordinated.

The bill calls for a one-time federal outlay of $30 million to help the USOC pay for its programs.

Overlooked in Draft By William N. Wallace NEW YORK, May 9 (NYT)— Forty-four running backs were selected in the National Football that I league's draft last week, and John quality con director of player personnel. Our reports indicated that Patton and Strong both have a quality essential in a halfback, Pagliaro, the Yale star, was not one of them, although he had impressive credentials.

Yale Running Back

Apart from pains of punctured pride. Pagliaro took the rejection in stride and listened to what his coach, Carm Cozza, told him. When it comes to the vulnerable that, from an economic standpoint, it was probably better not to get drafted after the eighth or ninth round and instead to await offers as a free-agent candidate. Cozza's advice was sound and the day after

The Yale player can expect a bonus offer of about $2,000 plus a minimum-wage NFL contract of $20,000 that goes into effect only if be makes the final squad of 45.

The fact that Pagliaro was not selected bolsters the view that the draft is unpredictable and immune to generalities or value judements.

Brantz consulted the scouting book with regard to Pagliaro and quoted: "Hard worker, tough kid, good inside runner, not much outside speed." The 40-yard sprint is pro football's measuring device for speed, and Atlanta's figures were 4.65 seconds for Patton; 4.7 for Strong, and 4.75 for Pagliaro.

But Pagliaro was voted the Ivy League's best player last season and regarded as the league's best back for the last two years. Perhaps there is some stigma surrounding there is some sugma surrounding lı is even more surprising to find the distinguished social philosopher, Art Buchwald, in agreement. Alibough not so well connected in the family way as

Eisenhower, Bu-chwald has spent most of his golden years in Washington dozing over after-dinner brandy with sages from every corner of the continent and presumably has his finger on the national pulse, low though it may be flickering when be counts

Far be it from me to contest with thinkers of this weight, but I con-fess that until they spoke, I had been firmly persuaded that Califor-nia was the one, the only section of the United States that nobody in the country disliked.

Oh. admittedly, a handful of New York intellectuals like Woody Allen and S.J. Perelman have put the knife from time to time into the subcutaneous fat of the Golden State. Allen has asserted that the only cultural advantage of California is "that you can make a right turn on a red light." And Perelman has pointed out that Los Angeles is the only city in the country where you can see a man being tried for committing a human sacrifice on the street corner-without a license.

These small churlishnesses, however, seem inspired only by their authors' abrasive experiences with the creative minds peculiar to the Los Angeles entertainment society. Behind them, one feels, lie temperaments prepared to go just as gooey as a Nebraska hired hand's at the thought of fog on San Francisco Bay, three cars in every garage at Laguna and pansy beds at Disney-land in the dismal March.

In fact, one of the most pleasant attractions of California has been its singular freedom from the regional paranoia which afflicts almost everyplace else. New York City firmly believes it is hated, not only throughout the country, but even in Albany. Albany believes it is looked down upon by New York City.

Buffalo thinks everybody is langhing at it and hates it when the news wires carry the annual winter reports about moose roaming the thoroughfares.

Southerners feel unjustly abused by the North and the North feels nnjustly drained of its tax wherewithal so the South can eat high on the hog. The Deep South feels misunderstood by the Shallow South. South Florida feels victimized by North Florida.

Chicago thinks New York is sneering at it. Texas suspects everybody else is making fun of it for being rich and wearing ten-gallon hats and going around with gusto. Washington thinks everybody is against it because nobody understands it.

Indeed, each of these places does come in for enough abuse from other regions to lend a thin layer of reality to the paranoia. But not Cal-ifornia. California seems to be the one place nobody ever speaks ill of. California is the one place every other American you meet would like 10 move to. Nor are Californians themselves visibly suffering from the notion that they have enemies beyond the Sierras. Those whom I meet on native territory usually assume I am envious of their good luck in habi-tal and, after establishing that it is impossible for me to move out there, try to soften the pain of my misfortune with sumptuous entertainment.

This makes it one of the more pleasurable places in the world to visit, unlike New York, where one must assure the natives that he loves it right down to its potholes, or Charleston, where he must insist that hygone racism doesn't trouble him a bit, or Texas, where he must dilate on his respect for big gestures, open hearts and loud cars before he can be established as an object fit for hospitality.

And so Eisenhower's conclusion that hostility toward Nixon reflected hostility toward California confuses me. I had always assumed that the hostilities toward Nixon were carefully cultivated by Nixon himself to build a loyal constituency of followers who loved him because he made the right enemies, Even in California he was no great favorite. They voted to send him cross-country to Washington, to be sure, but in 1962, when asked to keep him in Sacramento, they elected the other fellow governor.

He's Scouting the World For Acrobats, Aerialists

By Larry Gerber

NEW YORK (AP)—America's largest circus is seeking new talent from abroad.

Kenneth Feld. co-producer of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, said that he travels 250,000 miles each year in search of acrobats, aerialists, animal trainers and other skilled

"Right now were putting together our show for 1979," said Feld, who searches for entertainers in South America and scouts the tradition-rich acts of Europe. Feld has permission to visit every circus and training center in five Eastern European countries and negotiates with their governments for the services of Feld said that his organization has also made overtures to the Chinese government, so far without success. But he is optimistic.

"One of these days I'm sure well get a call from the embassy saying it's time, we want to talk to you," he said.

"We really don't have a circus tradition in this country," he said of the United States. "We've been here for 202 years, but the circus has been around in Europe since the time of Christ. It grew Ringling Brothers is actually two separate circuses owned by Mattel, Inc., a U.S. toy manufacturer. Together, they feature about 400 performers, nearly half of them from outside the United States. The international communities live and travel in two custom-made 37-car trains that cross North America each sum-

Socialist Countries

The 29-year-old American entrepreneur said that he has a special working relationship with culture officials in many of Europe's Socialist countries. "They take good care of their people," he said. "They negotiate good contracts for them. "When we first started dealing with the Eastern Europeans, it was harder," be said. "It was like negotiating the neutron bomb.

They were wary of us, and some people would say. 'He's trying to steal our act.' But now we're pretty well accepted. They know it's a great way to promote their culture."

Ringling Brothers prospects must meet three standards.

"We look for something you've never seen before—total uniqueness." Feld said. "Then we look for good-looking people. Then we look for performers. That's the main thing, and it's the hardest thing to find.

"Take Elvin Bale, one of our top acts...You see him on the street and you know he's a performer. He has that air about him. You know he's a star." Feld, accompanied by his father, Irvin Feld, made his first talent hunt in 1968 on a trip to Bulgaria. Since then, there have been changes and new opportunities for performers in the circus billed as "the greatest show on earth."

Best Aerialists

"There's a new, young, interest in circus," he said. "In 1966, the average age of a performer was 43. In 1978, its 23. In 1966, the youngest clown was in his late 50s. Now we have some kids in their 20s, It gives you youthful vitality."

Feld said that the world's best aerialists—wire walkers and tra-peeze artists—come from Colombia, Central America and Mexico. Germany is the traditional home of the top wild animal trainers. For tumblers and acrobats, Feld looks to Bulgaria, Hungary and elsewhere in Eastern Europe.

Kenneth Feld and Charlie, an elephant he recruited.

Spain and Italy produce destrous jugglers, and the United States turns out top-notch elephant trainers, he said.
"Why this is so, I don't know," Feld said, "That's just the way

Charly Banmann, performance director and tiger trainer, said that dedication is one reason why many world-renowned animal trainers come from his native Germany, "They spend more time on training there. People see it differently," said the Berlin-born artist, who chronicled his more than 30 years of circus experience in a book. "Tiger Tiger." "American kids want to get rich and famous overnight...That doesn't work in the circus business," he said.

Baumann said that European acts usually must make changes before becoming feature attractions in the United States. "In Europe, there usually aren't as many acts in a show," be said in a buckstage interview, "So when we get a new act that's 20 minutes long, it has to be cut to seven to nine minutes. It makes the act stronger. Pacing is important," Baumann sees another important difference in the American and European circus. "The money is better here," he said. "I can make twice as much here as over there." Feld, who looks for acts in the Soviet Union, said that performers from that country also must make adjustments before working in the United States. "The Russians take circus seriously," he said. "They tend to look very solemn and wear brown or darkcolored clothes. We put them in spangles and tell them to smile,

We think people go to the circus to forget the cares of the world."

Texan who received a dishonorable but Kennedy laughed off suggest discharge from the Navy in World War II because he field about his successor sumeday. Kennedy curage to enlist, will receive an honorable discharge and veterans' benefits. Sen. Lloyd Benesen, D-Texas, has announced. Benesen said that the White House had ordered the Navy to change Graham's dis-charge status. Now 48 years old, he was 12 when he enlisted. Graham. who lives in Fort Worth, was wounded in the Battle of Guadalcanal, but when the Navy found out his true age, he was discharged and stripped of his ribbons and bene-fits. He now suffers from arthritis and diabetes and will be eligible for care in Veterans' Administration hospitals. He will also get his deco-

Jay Percy Zachery of Saint Paul, Minn., says that his daily breakfast fare is a shot of whiskey with bacon and eggs on the side. It seems to agree with Zachary, who colebrated his 106th birthday last month. Zachary says he tasted his first liquor when he was 9. but has never been more than a moderate drinker. "I take just one shot a day," he said. "Just one shot, some bacon and eggs and I'm set for the day. Whiskey is medicine. It's not made to get drunk on."

Joseph Kennedy 3d, 24, the son of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy, has bought a new home in Boston's Brighton section. The light gray frame house is in the district of

Kennedy cur-rently works in Washington for the U.S. Community Services Adminis-tration, but is Irequently mentioned as the Kennedy family's next likely candidate for elective office. Gos-sip columnists in Boston have said that Kennedy plans to marry with-in a few months, but the backdor-kept quiet on that subject. kept quiet on that subject

A family spat has crupted in Plains. Ga., over the memoirs of the President. Carter, an uncle of the President. Carter, a Georgia state senator and antiques dealer, says in his book. "Comm Beedie and Cousin Hot." that Lillian Carter, the President's mother, has always been "domineering in her relations with her daughter-in-law, Rosalynn, When Jimmy Carter told her of his intention to marry Rosalynn, Carter said. Lillian Carter "commented with her characteristic bluntness that Rosalynn was not good enough for her son and not good enough for her son and not good enough for her son and not good enough to join the Carter family. "Lillian said openly that Jimmy was marrying a girl 'Irom the wrong side of the tracks." Of the future President, Hugh Carter quoted Lillian Carter as having said. "There's nothing special about Jimmy." Because of these and other references to her in the book, Carter said on NBC: "Today" program, Lillian Carter confronted him and said. "Yuu're the scann of the carth for what you said about me." As for the President and about me." As for the President the scom of the earth for what you said about me." As for the President's reaction, Hugh Carter said "He understands."
